

Participant reviews:

"I like the fact that it was online and I could go through it at my own convenience. It would have been hard for me to get out of work/school for this class. This class provided me with some really good information about the needs of 'our' children."

"You really helped my husband. He was not very active in our children's lives. He has made a complete turn around. You showed him ways to be pro-active."

"I think this class benefits EVERYONE, and all parents ought to join this class for the sake of their children."

"I wish I would have known of this class 7 years ago at the start of my divorce. I feel that I would have benefited from it at early start for the children."

"I feel this class is a good icebreaker when parents are stuck in "my way, your way" behavior."

"Painful mirror reflection of what I have done to contribute to the unsuccessful resolution to this divorce. I leave here with less anger towards the other parent and more ownership of what I can and should do going forward. This class helped put my focus off myself and back towards my children."

"I wish this class was available 10 years ago. Great information on how to consider the kids. Made me think how I can work on the transition of 2 households. Thank you!"

"I found this class amazingly informative. It made me look at myself retrospectively. It's helped me realize there are things I need to take responsibility for, not be victim. There is always room for improvement in one's parenting role."

Between Two Homes is an excellent resource for all parents who have or are divorcing or were never married and are trying to co-parent. No one wants to harm their children, but people do not always know how to handle all of the situations with the children's best interest in mind. This is an easy read with a lot of specific common examples of co-parenting challenges.

PRIMARY CLASS

$39.95

The Between Two Homes®: Making Two Homes Work

Our Cooperative Coparenting Parenting Education and Family Stabilization course is read aloud to give you the option to read or listen, and utilizes videos, short quizzes, and interactions to bring the course to life. Information is up to date and is designed to be entertaining and educational. Videos are presented in two formats, professionals discussing coparenting and role play videos showing examples of mistakes made and better ways to handle situations with the children.

The course is dedicated to helping families transition during changes and meet the needs of children growing up between two homes. This includes children being raised by never married parents, divorced or divorcing parents, same sex parents, and other relatives raising children between two homes.

offered in English and Spanish

OTHER CLASSES

Parallel Coparenting

$34.95

In some cases, many aspects of cooperative coparenting either will not work or promote increased risk for either coparent and/or the children. Areas which include increased risk are domestic violence circumstances, when one or both parents experience mental illness, when one or both parents are chemically dependent, or when parents continue to make adult focused rather than child focused decisions. Our Parallel Parenting Class is designed to teach parents how both homes can work separately in the best interests of the children if both parents are not able to work directly together. The Parallel Coparenting class is designed for high conflict parents who have completed the Making Two Homes Work class.

Boundaries

$29.95

This class will walk you through the foundational building blocks for creating successful adult and parenting relationships: setting boundaries. Boundaries help you regain your sanity, self respect, reduce stress, anxiety and resentment. Learning to set healthy boundaries is an adult skill that can be learned, although sometimes we need a little training to "improve our game".
